THE VENDOR, DAVID HERRY, Esq., of Glasgow, has sold to the said JOHN BELL, on the following special terms, viz., 10 PER CENT. DOWN, and the balance in 3 MONTHS, balance 1, 5, and 5 PER CENT. IN ADVANCE, 15 per cent. in 3 months, balance 1, 5, and 5 PER CENT. The title is under TORRENS' ACT. Place, GE. HARRIE and GORMAN.

JAMES MARTIN having moved "that until standing rules and orders be formally adopted, this House will observe the standing rules and orders in force during the last session of the late Parliament," some opposition arose, because there seemed to be an impression that the motion would interfere with debate upon the conduct of the Ministry. Some discussion took place, and at last the Speaker interposed with the remark that (the appeared to him to be unnecessary under the 35th clause of the Constitution Act. In point of fact, the Standing Orders of the last Parliament were still in force." In consequence of that ruling the motion was withdrawn; and, as we understand, from that day to this the Standing Orders have been in force.

In the Imperial Parliament, as Mr. says, the Standing Orders, "if not vacated or repealed, endure from one Parliament to another, and are of equal force in all." But tion is whether our Constitution Act, which deals specially with the matter, sets up a different state of things here. The Constitution Act provides in section 1 that "there shall be in place of the Legislative Council now subsisting one Legislative Council and one Legislative Assembly."

In section 35 it provides that "the said Legislative Council and Assembly, in the first session of each respectively, and from time to time afterwards as there may be occasion, shall prepare and adopt such standing rules and orders as shall appear to the said Council and Assembly respectively best adapted" to the conduct of business, &c., "all of which rules and orders shall by such Council and Assembly respectively be laid before the Governor, and being by him approved shall become binding and of force." On examining these words closely, it will be seen that the word "respectively" when first used is used to denote the separate action of the Council and the Assembly in the first session of each, and nothing more. There is nothing to require the re-preparation of rules in the first session of each respective Parliament. If that had been intended, it should have been expressed. The requirements of the Act were satisfied once and for all when the Standing Orders were prepared, submitted, and approved in the first session of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly respectively, and that was done in the first Parliament, in 1850. The words, "and from time to time afterwards, as there may be occasion" are clearly intended as a provision for contingencies, and cannot apply to regularly recurring events, such as the successive openings of new Parliaments. If the intention had been to require a renewed preparation of rules at the opening of each Parliament, there was nothing to prevent the use of words to that precise effect in the Constitution Act. The words actually used do not necessarily convey that meaning, nor indeed can that meaning be forced upon them without strain. Mr. ARNOLD, therefore, as it appears to us, was right in holding that the Standing Orders, once properly prepared, submitted and approved, remained in force from one Parliament to another, there being nothing in the statute to set aside the analogy of Imperial rule and practice.

If the Standing Orders so long recognized and applied are then really, in the terms of the statute, "binding and in force" the next question is, what is the meaning of the first of them? Here, again, close attention should be given to the precise words employed. They are as follows:—“In all cases not specially provided for hereinafter, or by seasonal or other orders, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Imperial Parliament, which shall be followed so far as the same can be applied to the proceedings of this House." It should be seen at once that this sweeps away all difficulties about the adoption or non-adoption of English rules by merely laying them on the table, and as to the determination of their applicability. The first Standing Order acts, unless or until it be suspended or repealed, as a compulsory instruction which both the Speaker and the House must obey. Whenever a case arises which the Speaker or the Chairman of Committees has to decide, the first thing to be done is to see whether it has been specially provided for by the orders of the House. If it has not been so provided for, "resort shall be had" to the Imperial rules, forms, and usages. There is no escape from that; and if there be an appeal from the Chairman, or the House be asked to dissent from the Speaker's ruling, the Imperial rules, forms, and usages must be resorted to still. In resorting to these rules and usages, just as in resorting to the rules of the Assembly itself, it is for the Speaker or the Chairman, as the case may be, to judge in the first instance whether and how far they can be applied. That is a matter of everyday practices and of obvious necessity. Why, otherwise, put anybody in the chair. It would be absurd if, on the raising of an ordinary point of order, the Chairman or the Speaker were to say:—"You must settle this, gentlemen, for yourselves. It is no part of my duty to decide whether there be or be not a question of order."

not any rule that can be applied to this case." But the principle is the same when the Speaker or the Chairman follows the new rules of the Imperial Parliament, as when he decides a common point of order by declaring that one of the Assembly's own standing orders applies to it.

In fact, when the Speaker or the Chairman has resort to the English rules in a case not specially provided for here, he is simply obeying the positive instructions of the House itself. When members rose last week to protest against being bound by the rules of a "foreign" Parliament, they forgot, or were unaware, that it was the law of the Assembly itself they were objecting to—a law that has been in force since the introduction of responsible government. They may stop the resort to the law and custom of the Imperial Parliament if they like, but they must still observe the law and practice to do so. They may, if they think fit, consider the results of the experience of centuries; but they must for that purpose ~~have~~ contempt upon the colonial experience of not quite thirty years. Let them repeal the first Standing Order, and then for every point that they wish to discuss, a special provision cannot

The Calcutta Exhibition is over, and, in spite of untoward surroundings at its inception, it has been successful. It may be taken, and will be hereafter referred to, as an illustration of what may be done by private enterprise. It was the first of the kind on a large scale. Others at which Mr. JOUBERT had figured were smaller—too small to test the full worth of the principles upon which they were conducted. There are materials now by which to form a judgment on the relative value of State Exhibitions as against private ones. The advantages attaching to the former cannot all be secured by the latter; and on the other hand the latter certainly record results not possible to the former. A State Exhibition has the advantage of the use of the buildings, and sometimes under circumstances which made them costly in the highest degree. In that respect the Garden Palace will always be remembered. When those buildings have ceased to be used for exhibition purposes they may be ornamental, and to some extent useful; but palatial Exhibition buildings may remain only as splendid monuments in proof that it is difficult to make them pay. The advantages of national Exhibitions are that they command, or are supposed to command, wider and stronger support. Distant countries can be invited to accept space for which they are not asked to pay. Handsome medals can be distributed to the receivers of the orders of the State, undertaking the Exhibition, bearing the lion's share of expenses. It is no wonder if such shows are popular, especially with exhibitors who do not always deny themselves the privilege of selling their exhibits privately or from their stalls. Promoters of the Amsterdam Exhibition knew the importance attaching to a national undertaking, and at the first it was understood that Amsterdam was going to do the proper thing. The patronage of Governments here was obtained through representations which left the impression that the undertaking was national. When the results of the contest had cleared away the real state of the case was disclosed. All that remained was to be said, and it is assuring to hear that after all the Exhibition has done good. But in future it will be as well for the world to be told plainly upon what basis any one of these things is to rest.

Whatever may be said about Mr. JOUBERT, it cannot be said that he ever made a secret of his relation to the Calcutta venture. The Exhibition owed its origin to him, whoever may claim to share the honour of its success. If he has lost by it, or stands to lose, he deserves sympathy for his position, if not credit for his statement. Bombay, having ascertained how the thing can be done, can afford to say, "We do not want Mr. JOUBERT," but apparently his invention is to be used. Unluckily for him he cannot patent it, and cannot prevent the Bombay people from doing anything they have seen him do at Calcutta. Now that the event has become history, the question

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE position of the British and Egyptian troops in the Sudan, except those on the Red Sea coast, appears to become more critical every day. According to a despatch to the Standard a large number of troops serving under General Gordon, at Khartoum, have deserted to the British flag, and the initials "B" are visible on the Sudanese flags. The Standard continues that the Sudan, as far north as Wady Halfa, is lost. In regard to the proposed Egyptian Congress on Egyptian matters there is some hitch, caused by the claims put forward by France. Mr. Ferri's Government, it is said, demands that the Egyptian Congress should embrace the whole of the affairs of Egypt. Another of our cablegrams this morning states that Sir Henry Parkes has contributed an article to the Nineteenth Century on the federation of the colonies and the establishment of a Council, to sit in London, to deal with the federation question. Sir Henry, in the federation question, avows himself personally anxious for legislative action, but says it is impossible for the Home Government to proceed until some of the colonies have sanctioned the decisions of the recent conference in Sydney. With respect to the redemptive mission, it is stated that Mr. Dillon, who is going to Paris to interview the French Under-Secretary for the Colonies. Our message is silent as to whether Sir P. Dillon Bell is undertaking the mission merely on behalf of his own Government, or whether he has taken upon himself to do battle for the whole of the colonies.

THE Orient Company's R.M.S. Iberia, with the English mails, via Suez, to another 27, arrived at Adelaide on Monday night. In another column we publish a telegraphic summary of news brought by her. The Sydney portion of the Iberia's mails should reach here on Friday morning.

THE usual motion for the adjournment of the House was carried, moved at 10. The same hour of the proceedings, the Legislative Assembly yesterday got through a creditable amount of business. Mr. Buchanan's motion, that the practice of the English Government of conferring titles upon colonists ought to be discontinued, was negatived, the mover having obtained only 10 votes. The same hour of the morning motion for immediately dissolving the Par-

At Caspagnon's rooms, on Monday night, a complete and elegant reception was given by Mr. William Pritchard by ratapayers of the borough of Leichhardt, in consequence of the many services which he had rendered to that place both when filling the mayoral chair and as an alderman. There was an attendance of about 80 gentlemen, amongst those being Sir John Robertson, Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. James Abigail, M.L.A., Mr. John Macfarlane, and Mr. John Macfarlane, gentlemen. Mr. John Rutherford, M.L.A., presided, the vice chair being filled by Messrs. Mainier and Booth. The banquet was served in excellent style, and after the good things provided had been discussed, the customary toasts followed.

Mr. John proposed the toast, "Our friends the ratapayers," Mr. John, in replying to the toast, thanked the company for the manner in which they had received it. He remarked that as the people made their own arrangements they had no right to complain if they did not give all the satisfaction desired of them, but it was a matter of regret that so few of the electors, comparatively speaking, were present to witness the proceedings. He then proposed the toast of "The Guest," and then announced the singing of "The Star." The singing was by the company.

We learn from the London papers that Mr. Watson and Dr. Farquharson have introduced into the House of Commons a bill to restrict the sale of patent medicines. It proposes that such medicines may be analysed by the Pharmaceutical Society, and until they are so analysed shall be deemed to be poisonous within the meaning of the Pharmacy Act, 1868. If found to be so, no poison to be propagated or vendor thereof may place upon the medicine the words "free from poison."

Two battles have now been fought (says the Times of March 14, referring to the Soudan) in a quarrel which was certainly unsought by this country, and as certainly thrust upon us. Never was there a clearer demonstration of the necessity to be always prepared for the unexpected than in the case of the Soudan. It would be useless to look back upon the past and wonder how far humanity has been served by a national shrinking from sending armed forces to restore order. The instinct of the country has been true, and has told it that there was Egyptian, though painful, work to be done, and that England alone was capable of doing that work. The Soudan is now a peaceful country.

LORD SHERBROKE is (says the Spectator) still to be insatiate and purports Mr. Lowe; but Mr. Lowe, apparently, with less magnanimity and courage. He has refused, in reply to a correspondent who has requested him to state his reasons for opposing the
 against the Franchise Bill when it reached the House of Lords, which runs as follows:—"Dear Sir,—"Hon-o'able Sir, "It always jerks me terribly to kick at nothing," and as Mr. Gladstone has not condescended give any reason why the change should be made, but has carefully confined himself to stating its details, there is no reason why I should not do the same. I mind of Turgot. He was said to ask the question, "What would be the use of making the pinner with what cause he would like to be entertained?" Answer: "I don't want to be eaten at all." Reply:
 "You are wandering from the question." I cannot undertake to make any more speeches on Reform than I can easily hope that things may turn out better than I think they will. I am sure it is all the cynical sharpness in the first part of this statement, and the old determination to hear witness against what Lord Sherbrooke thinks political injustice in the close.
 sarcasm itself has no sort of substance in it.

The political position of the British and Egyptian troops in the Sudan, except those on the Red Sea coast, appears to become more critical every day. According to a despatch to the Standard a large number of troops serving under General Gordon, at Khartoum, have deserted to the British flag, and the instability of the Egyptian troops. The Sudan, comprising the Sudan, as far north as Wady Halfa, is lost. In regard to the proposed Egyptian Congress on Egyptian matters there is some hitch, caused by the claims put forward by France. Mr. Ferri's Government, it is said, demand that the Egyptian Congress should be held in Egypt, embracing the whole of the affairs of Egypt. One of our cablegrams this morning states that Sir Henry Parkes has contributed an article to the Nineteenth Century on the federation of the colonies and the establishment of a Council, to sit in London, and that the Government of the United Kingdom, in a federation question, avows himself personally anxious for legislative action, but says it is impossible for the Home Government to proceed until some of the colonies have sanctioned the decisions of the recent conference in Sydney. With respect to the redivivus going to Paris to interview the French Under-Secretary for the Colonies. Our message is silent as to whether Sir F. Dillon Bell is undertaking the mission merely on behalf of his own Government, or whether he has taken upon himself to do battle for the whole of the colonies.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Iberia, with the English mails, via Suez, to March 27, arrived at Adelaide on Monday night. In another column we publish a telegraphic summary of news brought by her. The Sydney portion of the Iberia's mails should reach here on Friday morning.

The usual motion for the adjournment of the House was moved at the conclusion of the Committee report on the proceedings, the Legislative Assembly yesterday got through a creditable amount of business. Mr. Buchanan's motion, that the practice of the English Government of conferring titles upon colonists ought to be discontinued, was negatived, the mover being out of the house. The Government brought forward a motion for immediately dissolving the Par-purpose of registering the names and occupations of all immigrants out of employment who have arrived in the colony during the last fifteen months, and also the names of employers of labour in want of persons to fill the places. It is proposed that the newspapers will inform both immigrants and employers of the new arrangement, and it is believed that this plan will be very beneficial to both parties, as with a knowledge of the employment offering and of the persons ready to accept it, the two will be brought together in such a manner as to know how to surmount any difficulties that may stand in the way of new arrivals obtaining work.

By the death of the Hon. W. M. Alderson, M.L.C., a vacancy was created on the Sydney Hospital Board, and it has been filled, we are informed, by the appointment of Mr. J. C. Fisher, a member of the board.

We believe that Herr Hupf, who has been appointed Singing Master to the Department of Public Instruction in the room of Mr. J. C. Fisher, who has resigned the position.

YESTERDAY this weather continued wet and stormy, a strong gale blowing from south-east throughout the day, and the rain coming in heavy squalls. At nearly six o'clock a strong breeze sprang up from the north, with the exception of the ketch Ada going ashore at Newcastle, no casualties to shipping were reported. After midnight there was a break in the clouds, but the weather was still threatening.

OUR Paris correspondent (whose letter appears in another column) has translated a bitter article from the Republique Francaise on the recent visit of the Reine Marie-Jeanne to the Republic, to the effect that the Australian Governments would shut their ports against the Messageries and other French vessels if the recidivist scheme to New Caledonia were put into force. And he declares that the French Government might as well at once have little value. He therefore advises Australia to recognise the certainty of French recidivists being sent to the Pacific in the near future, and to lose no time in taking such steps as may be considered necessary to guard against the consequences.

OUR next letter from our special commissioners to the district of New South Wales in another column. It is dated Paroo River, 14th April, and the writer and and 15 were initiated into the order. The election of officers was then proceeded with, and the following unanimity prevailed:—The new name named the Union Jack, and makes the sixth Royal naval lodge now on this station. There was a good muster of blue jacket and marine templars from the other ships in port, who were very hearty in their good wishes for the new lodge, and all bearing testimony to the popularity of the same. The evening closed among them by having these lodges at work in their ships. Mr. John Wright, the Rev. W. E. Jackson, R.N., and other gentlemen present addressed the meeting, and spoke most encouragingly to the new members, and wished them "God-speed." Mr. Sharnston spoke of the great number of the men who were joining the men to be faithful to the cause they had espoused, and to let it be seen that they were making the effort to be better men in every way, and expressed the hope that they would work hard to get their shipmates to join with them in the work. After a new lodge had been established at the station, the firming was assisted at this meeting, the proceedings terminated with prayer and singing at 10 o'clock.

At Compageon's rooms, on Monday night, a complimentary banquet was tendered to Mr. William Pritchard by ratepayers of the borough of Leichhardt, in consequence of the many services which he had rendered to the community during his long tenure of office as chairman and as alderman. There was an attendance of about 80 gentlemen, amongst those being Sir John Robertson, Mr. Hutchinson, and Mr. Abigail, M.L.A. Several apologies were received for the absence of other gentlemen, Mr. King, Mr. Dwyer, &c. A.D., provided a rich choice of food filled by a sumptuous service. Booth. The banquet was served in excellent style, and after the good things provided had been discussed, the customary toasts followed. Mr. Booth proposed the toast of "The Parliament." Sir John Robertson, in reply, said that he was not a country gentleman in manner in which they had received it. He remarked that as the people made their own parliaments they had no right to complain if they did not give all the satisfaction desired of them, but it was a matter of regret that so few of the electors, comparatively speaking, exercised their right of franchise. He then announced and dropped the toast of "The Guest," and in part of the world better, it might almost be said so well, adapted for the growth and culture of the oyster as New South Wales. The climate, the nature of the coast-line, with its numerous inlets and creeks, and the natural existence of the best varieties of the bivalve mollusca, render it the most likely place to which all places for successful oysterculture. Unlike the coasts of England, Scotland, and Europe generally, where the coldness of the temperature in summer is sufficient sometimes to prevent the shedding of spat in all, and always to limit the quantity of it, New South Wales is peculiarly adapted to the oyster, so that a profusion which under proper regulations would make the oyster supply unlimited and inexhaustible. In Sydney the most delicious oysters, equal in flavour to the best English natives, are retailed at from 12 to 18 per shilling, including cost and butter. Yet, in Europe has never occurred to the minds of the politicians, although there can be no question that in experienced and enterprising hands it would inevitably become an extensive and remunerative business."

We learn from the London papers that Mr. Warton and Dr. Farquharson have introduced into the House of Commons a bill to restrict the sale of patent medicines. It is that which would prohibit the sale of any medicine by the Pharmaceutical Society, and until they have analysed shall be deemed to be poisonous within the meaning of the Pharmacy Act, 1868. If found to contain no poison the proprietor or vendor thereof may place upon the medicine the words "free from poison."

Two battles have now been fought (says the Times of March 14, referring to the Soudan) in a quarrel which was certainly unseemly by this country, and as certainly thrust upon us. Never was there a clearer demonstration of the necessity to be always prepared and to act with promptitude and decision. It would have been well to ask upon each pass and question how far humanity has been served by sending troops away from sending armed forces to restore order. The institution of the army has been true, and has told it that there was necessary, though painful, work to be done, and that England alone was capable of doing that work.

PARIS, MARCH 21.

The French have certainly been more successful in their Tongoing campaign than we have with ours in the Soudan. Since the small disaster which cost the life of Captain Riviere they have advanced steadily and surely towards the object they had in view, and they have become masters of Tongoing without much bloodshed there. It is impossible to deny the brilliant generalship of the French commander in obtaining possession of this ship.

A large number of British troops were sent from Beaulieu to assist him, but he had not, however, anticipated such bloodshed as occurred. By endeavouring to cut off the enemy's line of retreat he had intended to give the Chinese a severe lesson. The Orientals were surprised, however, too wary to allow themselves to be caught in a sort of military beetle-trap, where they would be slaughtered en masse. They showed the greatest regard for their skins than Osman Digna's men do.

The fight at Sontay, short as it was, was decisive because the French shot down all the bullets destroyed all the weapons, and killed many of the bullets. The next move in Tongoing is the question of the hour. Opinion is much divided on the subject. One party is in favour of following up the victory studio. The prince bowed grateful thanks, addressed the artist as cher maître, and withdrew. At the end of two hours this work of entertaining grows tedious, and Duran is glad when the moment comes for him to tell his servants to admit no more visitors. When he has bowed his last grateful thanks, and finds that the artist has struck a few notes upon a guitar, or taken up a guitar, and accompanies it with a Spanish song; or exercises one of his other talents by taking up his fencing foil for a few minutes. After which, Caroline Duran, one of the idols of Parisian society, and withal a man of striking appearance, with now silvering hair and beard, shows that he is human by falling with lusty appetite to a breakfast generally consisting of mutton chops and poached eggs.

The circular the one which is now being issued anonymously to Brisbane by the agents of your society, I disapprove. I am sure, either your personal knowledge or disapproval, or the knowledge of the insurance company, or the fact that the National Life Insurance Company, New York, which was finally decided in the company's favour by the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington, is at this time showing dislike upon the very existence of the following figures, taken from the company's report of 1884, of which I send 20 copies herewith for the use of your committee:
